

A strong partnership available to our churches

For years I have heard the ole saying; “We are stronger together, than we can ever be separately”. This week I witnessed that statement in action. Following an enlightening tour of Mission Granbury, I was afforded the opportunity to spend a great amount of time with their new executive director, Kurt Turner.

Mr. Turner comes to Granbury after spending approximately twenty years in leadership duties helping community agencies in Abilene, Texas as well as Bozeman, Montana. This man impressed me with his down to earth approach and his genuine interest in discovering how our churches can be assisted by the abilities and resources being offered by Mission Granbury.

I saw first hand, how Mission Granbury can interface with our churches to help meet the needs of folks who live right here in our part of the world who may be struggling with the basic needs of living. Mission Granbury is the place to interact with professionals who can interview people that find themselves in crisis mode. Many of our churches no longer have any paid office staff members who can point the hurting members of our community in the right direction. Well guess what, Mission Granbury has agreed to partner with us to fill in the blanks and to make sure that those who are hurting don't fall through the cracks of society. This will be a great blessing for your church, as well as, for the people who are looking to us for help.

I would like to encourage you to drop by Mission Granbury for a brief tour and to meet the new executive director. You will be enlightened if you take time to see what resources are available to your church. So that ole saying rings true when you consider that we have a valuable partner in our own back yard who is willing to work with us to meet the needs of folks who may be homeless, in need of counseling, or in need of a tank of gas. In other words, your church has an ally in Mission Granbury, so let's join hands to help meet the day to day needs of people who are barely getting by right here in Hood County.

Pray for Mission Granbury
God bless you and your church
